Seriously? These South Carolina Driving Laws Will Surprise You

Every state has driving laws on the books that may shock you, strike you as being unnecessary or stand out to you because they are just plain weird. Roadtrippers, for instance, found several head-scratching laws in states across the country, including:

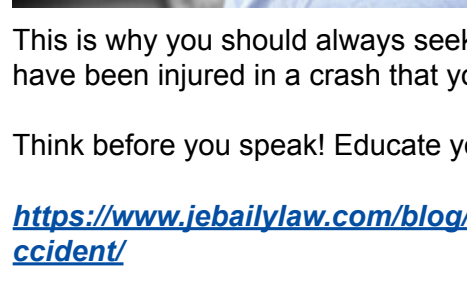

- An Alabama ban on driving while blindfolded
- A California city's prohibition against jumping from a car that is going 65 mph or faster
- An ordinance that makes it illegal to drive a red car down Lake Street in Minneapolis, Minnesota.

South Carolina is no exception. We recently cruised through Chapter 5 of the South Carolina Code of Laws – the state's motor vehicle and traffic laws – and found several items that we found to be interesting for what they prohibit or, in some cases, for what they do not prohibit.

The following South Carolina Driving Laws will really surprise you, Read More>>

Three Things You Should Never Tell an Insurance Company After a Car Accident

A car accident in Florence can be a confusing and disorienting experience. If you have been injured, you may be unsure of what steps you should take next – especially when it comes to working with insurance companies.

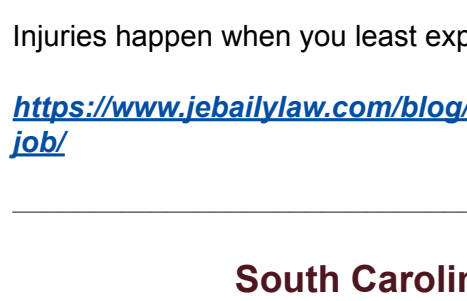

Auto insurers have one primary goal when it comes to car accident claims: They want to pay as little as possible. They are NOT on your side.

This is why you should always seek help from an experienced auto accident lawyer after you have been injured in a crash that you believe was the fault of another driver.

Think before you speak! Educate yourself..... Read More>>

Why Can't I Sue My Employer If I Got Hurt on the Job?

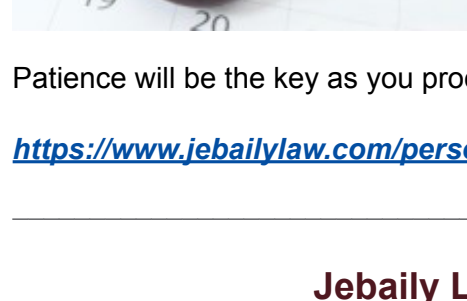

One of the questions injured employees most frequently ask is, "Why can't I sue my employer if I got hurt on the job?"

The answer can be found in Title 42 of the South Carolina Code, which contains the laws governing workers' compensation in South Carolina. These laws constitute, for the most part, the exclusive legal remedy for employees who are injured on the job.

Injuries happen when you least expect them; educate yourself on your rights.... Read More>>

Recipe of the Month
Pomegranate Bejeweled Goat Cheese Ball

Here a holiday appetizer that looks impressive and tastes great!

Ingredients

- 8 oz goat cheese
- Arils from 1 medium pomegranate (about 2/3 cup)
- 1/3 cup raw natural pecans
- 1 tablespoon chopped chives
- ½ tablespoon pure maple syrup
- 1/8 teaspoon fine sea salt
- Crackers, pita chips, or any other dippers

Directions

1. Roughly chop the pecans. Transfer to a saucepan heated over medium-low heat. Dry roast for 5 minutes, tossing once or twice.
2. Meanwhile, break the goat cheese into chunks and place in a bowl. Add the chopped chives.
3. Once the pecans are done roasting, drizzle the maple syrup and sprinkle the sea salt in. Remove from heat and stir together.
4. Transfer the pecans to the goat cheese bowl. Use a wooden spoon to combine everything evenly.
5. Transfer the goat cheese mixture to a cutting board. Use your hands to mold it into a ball.
6. Place the pomegranate arils on a small plate. Roll the goat cheese ball in the pomegranate, pressing the arils into the cheese ball with your hands. Continue until the entire cheese ball is covered in arils.
7. Place in the refrigerator until it's ready to be served. Serve with crackers, pita chips or pretzels.
